

Coomacka Island Announces Book Tour to Begin in September

The Coomacka Island series, written by Don P. Hooper and illustrated by Darnel Degand, will be touring the United States and the Caribbean starting September 2007. The third book in the Coomacka Island series, Lenox Lizard and the Kukumacka Duppy, was released in June 2007.

Brooklyn, NY, August 27, 2007 --(PR.com)-- The Coomacka Island series, now in its third book release, will be touring the United States and the Caribbean starting September 2007.

"Lenox Lizard and the Kukumacka Duppy," written by Don P. Hooper and illustrated by Darnel Degand, made its debut appearance at the Horace E. Greene school in Brooklyn, NY this past June. Students and teachers also listened to Don P. Hooper's reading of "Anansi Jr. and the Mango Truck."

Parents, teachers and students alike have expressed their delight in reading these stories. The unique Afro-Caribbean perspective told through the mythical characters on Coomacka Island gives the series a global appeal. Parents and teachers have been thrilled by Coomacka Island's use of a Q&A and Glossary at the back of each book, giving children the opportunity to open dialogue with adults.

About Coomacka Island (www.coomacka.com):

Coomacka Island is a mysterious uncharted island (meaning that you won't find this island on any map) in the Caribbean Sea.

About Lenox Lizard and the Kukumacka Duppy:

Join Lenox Lizard and other friends from Coomacka Island as they prepare for the championship football game against the Stoney Hill Scorpions.

Lenox will be faced with a difficult choice and have to confront his fear.
